33 Appeal from the May 2, 2011, judgment of the United States
34 District Court for the Western District of New York (John T. Curtin, 35 District Judge), dismissing as time-barred a complaint brought under 36 the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974 ("ERISA"), 29

1 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq. The Appellants challenge the time-bar rulings;
2 the Appellees challenge, in light of subsequent Supreme Court
3 decisions, the continuing validity of our opinions in Chambless v.
4 Masters, Mates & Pilots Pension Plan, 772 F.2d 1032 (2d Cir. 1985), 5 and Siskind v. Sperry Retirement Program, Unisys, 47 F.3d 498 (2d Cir.
6 1995), which stated that trustees of a pension plan act as fiduciaries 7 when they amend the plan.

8 Affirmed in part, vacated in part, and remanded; cross-appeal
9 dismissed as unnecessary.

21
22 JON O. NEWMAN, Circuit Judge:

23 This appeal and a purported cross-appeal primarily concern two 24 issues arising under the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 25 1974 ("ERISA"), 29 U.S.C. § 1001 et seq. The first issue is whether 26 trustees of a multi-employer pension fund act as fiduciaries when they 27 amend the pension plan. The second issue is whether the claims 28 asserted in this case are time-barred. These issues arise on an 29 appeal by present and former beneficiaries of the former Niagara-

1 Genesee & Vicinity Carpenters Local 280 Pension and Welfare Funds¹ from 2 the May 2, 2011, judgment of the District Court for the Western 3 District of New York (John T. Curtin, District Judge) dismissing their 4 complaint against present and former trustees and plan managers of the 5 Funds. The Plaintiffs-Appellants also appeal from the December 1, 6 2011, order denying their motion for reconsideration and for leave to 7 amend. By a purported cross-appeal, the Defendants-Appellees seek to 8 appeal that part of the District Court's October 22, 2010, order that 9 had denied dismissal of Counts I-V of the Complaint for failure to 10 state a claim on which relief could be granted; these counts were 11 subsequently dismissed as time-barred.

12 We conclude that dismissal of Counts I-V was proper because the 13 trustees were not acting as fiduciaries in amending the Plan, and in 14 reaching that conclusion, we deem the contrary rulings of our Court in 15 Chambless v. Masters, Mates & Pilots Pension Plan, 772 F.2d 1032 (2d 16 Cir. 1985), and Siskind v. Sperry Retirement Program, Unisys, 47 F.3d 17 498 (2d Cir. 1995), to have been abrogated by subsequent decisions of 18 the Supreme Court.² We also conclude that fact issues remain as to 19 whether Counts VII-IX were properly dismissed as time-barred. The 20 dismissal of Count VI is not challenged on appeal. On the appeal, we ¹The Funds merged into the Empire State Carpenters Pension and Welfare Funds, effective January 1, 2008.

²This opinion has been circulated to the active judges of the Court prior to filing.

1 therefore affirm in part, vacate in part, and remand. We dismiss the 2 cross-appeal as unnecessary.

3 Background

4 The parties. This is a derivative action brought on behalf of the 5 participants and beneficiaries of the Funds seeking to recover assets 6 that the Plaintiffs-Appellants assert were wrongfully depleted by the 7 Defendants-Appellees in violation of their fiduciary duties. The 8 Defendants-Appellees are present and former trustees or plan managers 9 of the Funds. The Complaint divides the trustees into four separate 10 groups, based on whether they served as trustees during the following 11 periods: (1) July 13, 2000 to December 31, 2007; (2) January 26, 1999 12 to July 12, 2000 (the "2000 trustees"); (3) January 20, 1994 to 13 January 25, 1999 (the "1994-98 trustees"); and (4) November 1993 to 14 January 19, 1994.³ The two plan managers are Santo Scrufari, who 15 served from 1985 to July 14, 1996, and his son Russell, who succeeded 16 his father and served until December 31, 2008.

17 The allegations in the Complaint. The Complaint asserted nine 18 counts of breach of fiduciary duty, eight of which are at issue in 19 this appeal. Counts I-V alleged various plan amendments that are 20 claimed to have breached the trustees' fiduciary duties. Count VI 21 alleged an increase in the monthly retirement benefit for a retired 22 trustee, accomplished with a plan amendment. The dismissal of this 23 count is not challenged on appeal.

³Some defendants are members of multiple groups.

1 Count VII alleged that, from 1993 to July 14, 1996, Santo
2 Scrufari manipulated Pension Fund calculations in order to grant 3 himself and one trustee higher pay-outs than they were owed under the 4 Fund Plan. He concealed this from the other trustees by altering the 5 relevant pension credit records. Count VII further asserted that the 6 1994-98 trustees breached their fiduciary duties by failing to 7 adequately monitor Scrufari. Counts VIII-IX alleged that the 8 Scrufaris and their associates stole money from the Welfare Fund over 9 a number of years, fraudulently concealed these withdrawals by 10 labeling them "Scholarship" or "Health Care" benefits, and failed to 11 pay taxes on these withdrawals. Like Count VII, Counts VIII and IX 12 further asserted that the 1994-98 trustees and the 2000 trustees
13 failed to adequately monitor the Scrufaris.

14 Prior litigation involving Santo Scrufari. In 2006, Santo 15 Scrufari was found liable for a number of breaches of fiduciary duty, 16 including improper weighting of his fringe benefits, during the period
17 between March 1989 and October 1992. See LaScala v. Scrufari, No. 93-
18 CV-982C(F), 2006 WL 469404, at *1 (W.D.N.Y. Feb. 27, 2006), rev'd, 479
19 F.3d 213 (2d Cir. 2007), on remand, 2010 WL 475284, at *1 (W.D.N.Y.
20 Feb. 5, 2010). That suit did not consider Scrufari's activities after 21 October 1992. See LaScala, 2006 WL 469404 at *1.

22 Procedural history of the pending suit. The Plaintiffs filed the 23 present action on June 26, 2009. They assert that they became aware 24 of the Defendants' illegal activities after September 20, 2007, when 25 damages discovery in the LaScala case revealed incriminating

1 documents. The Defendants moved to dismiss pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P.
2 12(b)(6), principally asserting that the Plaintiffs' claims were time-3 barred under section 413 of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. § 1113 (as amended). The 4 District Court granted the motion as to all pertinent claims on that 5 basis but rejected the Defendants' alternative claim that Counts I-V 6 did not allege actions that fell within the scope of ERISA's fiduciary 7 duty statute.

8 Following entry of judgment, the Plaintiffs moved for 9 reconsideration of the District Court's order and for leave to amend 10 the complaint to allege fraud with greater particularity. The 11 District Court denied the motion for reconsideration, rendering the 12 motion to amend moot. See National Petrochemical Co. of Iran v. M/T 13 Stolt Sheaf, 930 F.2d 240, 244 (2d Cir. 1991) ("[O]nce judgment is 14 entered the filing of an amended complaint is not permissible until 15 judgment is set aside or vacated pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e) or 16 60(b).") (internal quotation marks and citation omitted).

17 Discussion

18 I. Whether Trustees Act as Fiduciaries in Amending a Plan

19 We consider first the contention of the Appellees that the 20 dismissal of Counts I-V should be affirmed on the ground that the 21 actions challenged in those counts were pension plan amendments, which 22 are not fiduciary actions and therefore do not violate section 23 404(a)(1) of ERISA. Initially, we note that the Appellees took the 24 unnecessary step of filing a cross-appeal to assert this contention.
25 An appellee needs to file a cross-appeal only to request an appellate 26 court to grant some additional relief beyond the judgment entered by

1 a district court. See Carlson v. Principal Financial Group, 320 F.3d 2 301, 309 (2d Cir. 2003). In the absence of a cross-appeal, an 3 appellee is entitled to seek affirmance on any ground supportable by 4 the record. See Bruh v. Bessemer Venture Partners III L.P., 464 F.3d
5 202, 205 (2d Cir. 2006) ("[W]e may affirm on any basis for which there 6 is sufficient support in the record, including grounds not relied on 7 by the district court."). For this reason, we will dismiss the cross-8 appeal as unnecessary, but nonetheless consider the contention that 9 the Appellees have advanced in support of the District Court's 10 judgment.

11 In 1985, this Court ruled that, with respect to multi-employer
12 pension plans, the act of amending a plan should be treated as a 13 fiduciary function, see Chambless, 772 F.2d at 1040, thereby invoking 14 section 404(a)(1) of ERISA, 29 U.S.C. § 1104(a)(1), which obliges a 15 fiduciary to "discharge his duties with respect to a plan solely in 16 the interest of the participants and beneficiaries." Ten years later 17 we ruled that amending a single employer pension plan was not a 18 fiduciary function, pointedly distinguishing Chambless on the ground 19 that "[i]n the multi-employer setting, trustees amending a pension 20 plan 'affect the allocation of a finite plan asset pool' to which each 21 participating employer has contributed." See Siskind, 47 F.3d at 506 22 (quoting Musto v. American General Corp., 861 F.2d 897, 912 (6th Cir.
23 1988)). The Appellees contend that the ruling in Chambless and the 24 language in Siskind distinguishing multi-employer plans has been 25 abrogated by the combined effect of three decisions of the Supreme 26 Court: Curtiss-Wright Corp. v. Schoonejongen, 514 U.S. 73 (1995);

1 Lockheed Corp. v. Spink, 517 U.S. 882 (1996), and Hughes Aircraft Co.
2 v. Jacobson, 525 U.S. 432 (1999). The Appellants respond that the 3 Chambless/Siskind view of multi-employer plans has survived the later 4 Supreme Court decisions.

5 Resolving this dispute involves consideration of the deference a 6 court of appeals owes to language in Supreme Court opinions that 7 contributes to the Court's reasoning, even if it does not incorporate 8 a precise holding. See generally Pierre N. Leval, Judging Under the 9 Constitution: Dicta about Dicta, 81 N.Y.U. L. Rev. 1249 (2006)
10 Initially, we note that Curtiss-Wright, Lockheed Corp., and Hughes
11 Aircraft all involved single employer plans. Thus, the Supreme Court 12 had no occasion to rule definitively on whether amending a multi-13 employer plan was a fiduciary function. Nevertheless, we need to 14 consider carefully what the Supreme Court said in deciding those 15 cases.

16 In Curtiss-Wright, which involved a welfare plan, the Court said, 17 "Employers or other plan sponsors are generally free under ERISA, for 18 any reason at any time, to adopt, modify, or terminate welfare plans."
19 514 U.S. at 78 (emphasis added). Lockheed Corp. involved a pension 20 benefit plan. The Court said, "We see no reason why the rule of 21 Curtiss-Wright should not be extended to pension benefit plans." 517 22 U.S. at 890. The Court also declared, "Plan sponsors who alter the 23 terms of a plan do not fall into the category of fiduciaries." Id.
24 Hughes Aircraft concerned a pension plan to which employees were 25 required to contribute. The Ninth Circuit had thought that this 26 circumstance distinguished Lockheed Corp. and concluded that an

1 amendment to such a plan was subject to ERISA's fiduciary standards.
2 See Jacobson v. Hughes Aircraft Co., 105 F.3d 1288, 1293 (9th Cir.
3 1997) ("[T]he asset surplus that was used in Lockheed to fund the 4 early retirement program was attributable only to employer
5 contributions. Here, plaintiffs allege that the asset surplus Hughes
6 used to fund the early retirement program and the new Non-Contributory 7 Plan was attributable to both employer and employee contributions").
8 The Supreme Court disagreed. "Our conclusion [in Lockheed Corp.]
9 applies with equal force to persons exercising authority over a 10 contributory plan, a noncontributory plan, or any other type of plan."
11 Hughes Aircraft, 525 U.S. at 443-44. And, the Court added 12 emphatically, the fiduciary duty claims "are directly foreclosed by 13 [Lockheed's] holding [sic] that, without exception, '[p]lan sponsors 14 who alter the terms of a plan do not fall into the category of 15 fiduciaries.'" Id. at 445 (quoting Lockheed, 517 U.S. at 890).

16 Shortly after Lockheed was decided, the Third Circuit relied on 17 the Supreme Court's reference to "plan sponsors" to rule that the 18 Court's decision applies to multi-employer plans. See Walling v.
19 Brady, 125 F.3d 114 (3d Cir. 1997). " Lockheed speaks of 'plan 20 sponsors,' a term that applies to both single-employer sponsors and 21 multi-employer sponsors under ERISA, and the opinion lacks any hint 22 that single- and multi-employer plans should be analyzed differently."
23 Id. at 117. The Third Circuit also quoted ERISA's definition of "plan 24 sponsor":

1 The term "plan sponsor" means (i) the employer in the case
2 of an employee benefit plan established or maintained by a 3 single employer . . . or (iii) in the case of a plan 4 established or maintained by two or more employers or 5 jointly by one or more employers and one or more employee 6 organizations, the association, committee, joint board of 7 trustees, or other similar group of representatives of the 8 parties who establish or maintain the plan.
9

10 Id. at 118 (quoting 29 U.S.C.A. § 1002(16)(B)).

11 Thereafter, with the benefit of Lockheed Corp. and Hughes
12 Aircraft, the District of Columbia Circuit reached the same
13 conclusion. See Hartline v. Sheet Metal Workers' National Pension
14 Fund, 286 F.3d 598, 599 (D.C. Cir. 2002). "The Supreme Court made it 15 clear in [Curtiss-Wright, Lockheed, and Hughes Aircraft] that 16 employers and plan sponsors do not act in a fiduciary capacity when 17 they modify, adopt or amend plans. Nothing in the Supreme Court's 18 decisions or ERISA itself creates an exemption for multiemployer 19 pension plans." Id.

20 Even before the three Supreme Court decisions, the Sixth Circuit 21 had abandoned dictum in Musto, 861 F.2d at 912, indicating that 22 trustees amending a multi-employer plan act as fiduciaries, and ruled 23 that "amendment of multi-employer plans does not differ from amendment 24 of single-employer plans." Pope v. Central States Southeast and 25 Southwest Areas Health and Welfare Fund, 27 F.3d 211, 213 (6th Cir.
26 1994).

27 Closer to home, three district courts within the Second Circuit 28 have either questioned or disregarded the continuing validity of our

1 opinions in Chambless and Siskind in light of the Supreme Court's 2 decisions. In 2005, Judge Hurd, in the Northern District of New York, 3 stated that "the invalidation of . . . Musto . . . leaves the view in 4 Siskind and Chambless without any support in the post-Hughes Aircraft 5 era." Fuchs v. Allen, 363 F. Supp. 2d 407, 416 (N.D.N.Y. 2005).⁴ In 6 that same year, Judge Garaufis, in the Eastern District of New York, 7 ruled that the holdings in Chambless and Siskind cannot survive
8 Lockheed and Hughes Aircraft. See Cement and Concrete Workers District
9 Council Pension Fund v. Ulico Casualty Co., 387 F. Supp. 2d 175, 186
10 (E.D.N.Y. 2005), aff'd on other grounds, 199 F. App'x 29 (2d Cir.
11 2006). Last year, Judge Gardephe, in the Southern District of New 12 York, stated flatly that Chambless and Siskind "have been overruled."
13 Gannon v. NYSA-ILA Pension Trust Fund and Plan, No. 09-CV-10368, 2011
14 WL 868713, at *8 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 11, 2011).

15 Although the Supreme Court's opinions in Curtiss-Wright, 16 Lockheed, and Hughes Aircraft all involved single-employer plans, we 17 agree with the Third, Sixth, and District of Columbia Circuits that 18 the Court's language analyzing fiduciary duties under ERISA is equally 19 applicable to multi-employer plans. Although it is a somewhat close 20 question whether that language was sufficiently related to the Court's 21 ultimate rulings to be considered as holdings or only highly 22 persuasive dicta, we now regard it as ample justification to deem it
23 to have abrogated Chambless and Siskind with respect to multi-employer

⁴Judge Hurd noted, but disagreed with, the opinion of Judge Curtin, in the Western District of New York, Burke v. Bodewes, 250 F. Supp. 2d 262, 270 (W.D.N.Y. 2003), adhering to Chambless and Siskind after the Supreme Court decisions. See Fuchs, 363 F. Supp. 2d at 416.

1 plans. Moreover, in the absence of compelling reasons to the 2 contrary, maintaining a circuit split on the issue of trustee 3 liability as fiduciaries for amending multi-employer plans is 4 inadvisable. We therefore conclude that Counts I through V were 5 subject to dismissal because the Defendants were not acting as 6 fiduciaries when they amended the plans.

7 II. Whether Counts VII-IX Are Time-Barred

8 ERISA's statute of limitations, set out in the margin,⁵ provides 9 three alternative limitations periods, depending on the underlying 10 factual circumstances. The first period, applicable in the absence of 11 any special circumstances, is six years from the date of the last 12 action that was part of the breach. The second period is three years, 13 applicable and beginning when a putative plaintiff has "actual 14 knowledge" of the violation, defined as "knowledge of all material 15 facts necessary to understand that an ERISA fiduciary has breached his 16 or her duty or otherwise violated the Act." Caputo v. Pfizer, Inc.,

⁵Section 1113 provides:

No action may be commenced under this subchapter with respect to a fiduciary's breach of any responsibility, duty, or obligation under this part, or with respect to a violation of this part, after the earlier of -

(1) six years after (A) the date of the last action which constituted a part of the breach or violation, or (B) in the case of an omission the latest date on which the fiduciary could have cured the breach or violation, or

(2) three years after the earliest date on which the plaintiff had actual knowledge of the breach or violation; except that in the case of fraud or concealment, such action may be commenced not later than six years after the date of discovery of such breach or violation.

1 267 F.3d 181, 193 (2d Cir. 2001).⁶ However, "constructive knowledge" 2 of the breach does not trigger the three-year period. See id. at 194.
3 The third period is six years, applicable where a complaint alleges 4 fraud or concealment with the requisite particularity. Relevant to 5 the pending appeal, this six year period is tolled until the plaintiff 6 discovers, or should with reasonable diligence have discovered, the 7 breach. See id. at 190. To successfully plead this "fraud or 8 concealment exception," a complaint must allege that a fiduciary 9 either "(1) breached its duty by making a knowing misrepresentation or 10 omission of a material fact to induce an employee/beneficiary to act 11 to his detriment; or (2) engaged in acts to hinder the discovery of a 12 breach of fiduciary duty." Id. Moreover, these allegations must be 13 stated "with particularity," Fed. R. Civ. P. 9(b), requiring a 14 plaintiff to "specify the time, place, speaker, and content of the 15 alleged misrepresentations," as well as "how the misrepresentations 16 were fraudulent" and "those events which give rise to a strong 17 inference that the defendant had an intent to defraud, knowledge of 18 the falsity, or a reckless disregard for the truth." Id. at 191 19 (internal textual alterations, quotation marks, and citations 20 omitted).

21 The issue as to whether Counts VII-IX could be dismissed on 22 motion under Rule 12(b)(6) concerns application of the "fraud or 23 concealment" exception of Section 1113(2). Count VII alleged Santo 24 Scrufari's improper "weighting" of benefits between late 1992-1993 and ⁶Of course, the three-year limitations period may not extend the viability of claims beyond the outer limit of six years specified in section 1113(1).

1 1996. Counts VIII and IX alleged that Scrufari and his son stole 2 money from the Welfare Fund and concealed their actions by 3 fraudulently labeling withdrawals "Scholarship" or "Health Care" 4 benefits. Although Judge Curtin was satisfied that the Plaintiffs had 5 adequately pleaded fraud or concealment, at least with respect to 6 Counts VII and VIII,⁷ he concluded, taking judicial notice of the 7 LaScala case, that they knew or should have known of Santo Scrufari's 8 activities well in advance of June 26, 2003, six years prior to the 9 commencement of this suit.

10 We think that conclusion could not properly be reached at the 11 pleading stage. It is true that the LaScala case concerned misconduct 12 similar to what Scrufari is alleged to have done in this case.
13 However, the prior litigation concerned misconduct occurring no later 14 than October 1992, a period prior to the time during which the 15 misconduct at issue in this case is alleged to have occurred. At 16 most, LaScala creates an issue of fact as to whether the Plaintiffs 17 knew or should have known of Scrufari's activities between 1993 and 18 1996 based on his activities prior to that time. The resolution of 19 that issue was not proper at the pleading stage. Whether the issue 20 might be resolved on motion for summary judgment after discovery 21 remains to be determined on remand.

22 III. Whether the District Court Properly Denied the Motion to Amend

23 The Plaintiffs-Appellants assert that the District Court erred in 24 denying leave to amend the Complaint. Normally, leave to amend should ⁷Count IX asserted substantially the same activity as Count VIII, which the District Court found adequately alleged fraud or concealment. Fairly read, the allegations of fraud or concealment in Count VIII apply to Count IX as well.

1 be "freely give[n] . . . when justice so requires." Fed. R. Civ. P.
2 15(a)(2). However, amendment of a complaint becomes significantly 3 more difficult when a plaintiff waits, as the Plaintiffs in this case 4 did, until after judgment has been entered. "[O]nce judgment is 5 entered the filing of an amended complaint is not permissible until 6 judgment is set aside or vacated pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 59(e) or 7 60(b)." National Petrochemical Co. of Iran, 930 F.2d at 244. "The 8 merit of this approach is that '[t]o hold otherwise would enable the 9 liberal amendment policy of Rule 15(a) to be employed in a way that is 10 contrary to the philosophy favoring finality of judgments and the 11 expeditious termination of litigation.'" Id. at 245 (quoting 6 C.
12 Wright & A. Miller, FEDERAL PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE § 1489, at 694 (1990)).
13 Here, the District Court properly denied the motion to amend following 14 its denial of the motion for reconsideration.

15 Because we vacate the District Court's dismissal of several 16 counts, however, we note that the prior judgment will no longer bar 17 future motions for leave to amend with respect to the surviving 18 claims.

19 Conclusion

20 For the foregoing reasons, the District Court's dismissal of 21 Counts I-V is affirmed, its dismissal of Counts VII-IX is vacated, and 22 the case is remanded for further proceedings. The cross-appeal is 23 dismissed as unnecessary.
